

Instruction Sheet for Integration Course

for new immigrants who are entitled or obliged to attend the integration course, as well as foreigners with long-term residency in Germany who are obliged to attend the integration course

Dear Co-citizen,

In accordance with the Residency Act, you are entitled to, or are obliged to, attend an integration course once.

What is an integration course?

The general integration course consists of a language course with 600 hours and an orientation course organised over 45 hours. The language course consists of modules of 100 hours each. The first 300 hours are called the basic language course, while the subsequent 300 hours represent the follow-on language course.

In the language course you learn the vocabulary you need to speak and write in everyday situations. This includes contact with authorities, conversations with neighbours and colleagues, writing letters and completing forms.

The orientation course informs you about life in Germany and provides knowledge about the legal system, the culture and the recent history of Germany.

There are also special integration courses, for example for women, parents, young people as well as for participants who cannot yet read or write properly. These courses last for 945 hours. If you learn particularly quickly, you can attend an intensive course. This lasts for only 430 hours.

The course provider carries out an assessment before the beginning of the course to decide which is the right course for you and which module you should tackle first.

Taking the final examination

The final examination consists of a language examination and the test relating to the orientation course. If you can prove in the language examination that you have a sufficient command of German, and if you pass the test relating to the orientation course, you have successfully completed the integration course and are awarded the "Integration Course Certificate".

If you were not successful, you will only be given a certificate confirming the results you achieved.

Participation in the final examination is free of charge.

Advantages of attending the integration course

Immigrants from a country that does not belong to the European Union must meet certain requirements if they wish to obtain an unlimited right of residence in Germany. Among other things, they must have an adequate command of the German language as well as basic knowledge of the legal and social system and of living conditions in Germany. These requirements have been met when such persons have successfully completed the integration course. Moreover, this also allows them to acquire German citizenship earlier if desired.

The knowledge of the German language acquired in the integration courses also makes everyday life easier in Germany and improves immigrants' chances on the labour market.

Registration for the integration course

If you are entitled or obliged to attend an integration course, you will receive written confirmation (Certificate of Eligibility) from the Aliens' Office or the office responsible for unemployment benefit II. At the same time you will also be given a list of the course providers that offer integration courses near your place of residence.

In the Certificate of Eligibility, under "Authorisation is valid until ...", you will find a date up until when the authorisation to attend an integration course is valid. By this date at the latest you can, or must, register with the course provider for the integration course. You should therefore register as soon as possible and submit your Certificate of Eligibility to the course provider.

The course provider must then notify you of the probable date of the beginning of a course. The course should start within three months of the date of your registration. The course provider must let you know if no course is due to start within these three months. You can then decide yourself whether you wish to wait longer or prefer to register with a different course provider. In this case the course provider must return your Certificate of Eligibility.

Proper course attendance

To ensure that you achieve the objective of the integration course, you should attend the course in a proper manner. This means that you should attend lessons regularly and take the final examination. Proper course attendance is also important for you if you receive a travel allowance or if you wish to repeat the follow-on language course later. Your course provider will give you written confirmation that you have attended the course in a proper manner, if you so wish.

Costs for the integration course

You must pay the course provider a contribution of one euro for every lesson of the integration course. This amount is to be paid at the beginning of each module of 100 hours and before the orientation course. If you do not attend classes, the contribution to costs for the lessons you have missed cannot be refunded. If you have no income of your own, the person who is obliged to pay for your maintenance must pay your contribution to the costs.

The Federal Office for Migration and Refugees may exempt you from contributing to costs if you find it difficult to pay the contribution because of your low income. You must apply in writing to the regional office of the Federal Office for Migration and Refugees responsible for you (see list of addresses). Please enclose verification of the reasons for exemption (copy of the relevant certificate). Please submit the application with your registration to the course provider.

If you receive unemployment benefit II and have been obliged by the responsible office to attend an integration course, you are automatically exempted from contributing to costs. In this case you do not need to submit an application to the Federal Office for Migration and Refugees. However, you must notify the Federal Office if you no longer receive unemployment benefit II.

Reimbursement of the contribution to costs

If you have successfully taken the final examination after 08.12.2007, the Federal Office for Migration and Refugees will reimburse you for 50 % of the contribution to costs already paid. However, this only applies if no more than two years have passed between the confirmation of eligibility to attend the course being issued and the final test. To obtain this reimbursement you must submit an application to the regional office of the Federal Office for Migration and Refugees responsible for you.

Travel allowance

The necessary travel expenses will be refunded to you or you will receive a travel allowance if you are exempted from making the financial contribution or if you have been obliged to attend an integration course.

In all cases, you must submit an application to the Federal Office for Migration and Refugees, stating the reasons for the travel costs. Travel costs may only be reimbursed if you attend the course properly.

Repeating the follow-on language course

If you cannot prove that you have a sufficient command of German in the language examination, you can repeat 300 hours (follow-on language course) once. A precondition for this is, however, that you have attended classes regularly and have taken the final examination.

After these repeat lessons, you can sit the language examination again free of charge.

If you wish to repeat the follow-on language course, you must submit an application to the Federal Office for Migration and Refugees.

Notes on obligation to attend the course

If you have been obliged to attend an integration course by the Aliens' Office or by the office responsible for unemployment benefit II, you must apply to the course provider for an integration course as quickly as possible and attend the course in a proper manner.

If you do not do so, this may have the following consequences for you, among other things:

- It may influence the decision concerning the extension of your residence permit.
- If you receive social assistance, the payments may be reduced.
- If appropriate you may be called on by the Aliens' Office to pay the contribution to costs in the amount of one euro per lesson for the entire integration course in advance in one sum.
- A fine may be imposed.

Your course provider must notify the Aliens' Office or the office responsible for unemployment benefit II if you do not attend the integration course in a proper manner.

Other things you need to know

⇒ You can obtain all of the application forms mentioned in this instruction sheet from the course provider, your local Aliens' Office or the regional office responsible for you. You can also find the forms at the Internet site www.integration-in-deutschland.de.

Please also note the services offered by the Advisory Services for Adult Immigrants (MEB) as well as the migration services for young people. They will help you to complete applications, they will answer your questions and listen to your problems, and will help to find a suitable integration course for you. You can find out where there are migration advisory services and migration services for young people near you either from your Aliens' Office, the regional offices of the Federal Office for Migration and Refugees or in the Internet at www.integration-in-deutschland.de.
